NEW CAPTAIN FOR COLLEGE TEAM

B. West Tabb Elected in Place of Captain Cammack-

GOOD MATERIAL PLENTIFUL.

The Men Are Playing Snappy Ball and Will Give a Good Account of Themselves-Varsity Game on Wednesday the 10th.

. In the hard-fought game with Hampden-Sidney last fall Captain Cammack-sustained injuries from which effects are still annoying and he is compelled to leave the field. At a regular meeting of the team on Thursday, Mr. Benj. West Tabb was chosen by the men to captain them. Mr. Tabb, with an experience of seven years in football, is perhaps as well filled for his position as a captain could be. In view to our reporter: "In giving you a general review of our work, I just wish to say that I think the prospects of the team are good. While the men are light and inexperienced, they are a willing lot and have a capacity for work that promises well for success. The rough edges are gradually wearing off. The plays every day have more of the snap and precision that a fast foot-ball team shows. In a few days the team will be in good working order. "The line will be light, but the men are quick and muscular, and will make up in precision and quickness what they lack in pure beef. Carney, Massey and Anderton are the aspirants for center. Carney, while very light for the position, is active and has the advantage of experience. Anderton is a new man who is showing up well. He has weight and strength His newness at the game is wearing off and his improvement has been rapid. Massey plays a steady game, but is a bit inaccurate in passing to quarter.

"At guard, Prince is making a g of showing. Ine has the true spirit of the game and works hard. He is not quite aggressive enough, but that will come in time. Wood and Anderton, Powell, Valentine, are other applicants for these positions. Valentine needs a good deal of waking up. He is careless and a little awkward, but he has the weight and strength to make a good one. At little awkward, but he has the weight and strength to make a good one. At tackle McConnel is putting up a fast, hard game. He tackl's well, and has the football knack of being always in the other fellow's way. He interferes "Boatwright, Roe, and Goodwin are a trio that promise well. At end there is a wealth of good, fast material. Cap-tain Tabb, Ellyson, Broadus, Staples, Poindexter, Kerloot, and Hundley are a good lot to pick from. Broadus is a good man, but a little slow. Tabb plays with a dash that is bound to show, and Ellyson makes a fast partner for him.

on makes a fast partner for him.

"At quarter Hotchkiss and Owen are the most promising candidat's. Hotchkiss is the heavier, and a little less likely to fumble, but both men show good form, and both have good heads for managing the playing of the team. "At half Pollard and Lankford, with the two Frayers, are a lot of men hard to beat. Lankford, particularly, plays a fierce, hard game. He hits the line well, runs well b hind interference, and tack-les hard and low. He is a very promising player. Pollard plays the same kind of player. Pollard plays the same kind of a game as Lankford, and has the advantage of years. Both these men are going to do well. The two Frayers, while new at the game, are good men, who work will and play fast, snappy ball. At full back we have Sanford, the heaviest man of the team. His line-bucking possibilities are tremendous, and in the interference it should be a wall. Locadus has also been playing free, but has not Samford's weight of kicking abilities.

"You can see from these men that there is a very goat likelihood that we

OLLA PODRIDA. OLLA PODRIDA.

The col'ge of to-day must sustain among its various side issues an annual, a monthly, and a weekly publication. Richmond, up well in the lead of our kouthern schools, has begun the publication of a weekly—The Olla Podrida—a review of its collegiate life—athletics, social, and academic. The paper enters upon its s'cond half session with good prospects, and, with Mr. Robert N. Polprospects, and, with Mr. Robert N. Pollard as editor-in-chief, the paper will prove an epiament to the college.

PROMISING YEAR FOR FOOTBALL

The Blacksburg Eleven Promises to Show Up Well-They Will Play the College Here on November 3d.

(Special Dispatch to The Times.)

LEXINGTON, VA., October 6.—Football at the Virginia Military Institute is progressing very rapidly now, and the cadets have prospects for a line team this

The season will be opened with Wash-The season will be opened with Washington and Lee University on October 13th, on the latter's grounds, and the cadets are now spending half of their forty minutes' practice each evening in perfecting their processing the process of the control of practice each evening in perfecting their defective formation, against a very strong second team. Forty men have responded to Captain Roller's call for candidates since the 1st of September. Seven of last year's team are working hard for their place the year. They are (Capt.) Roller, at quarter-back, who is a very powerful man on the detensive and offensive, teing both very strong and of a quick and steady man on the detensive and officiarty, this both very strong and of a quick and steady judgment, never losing his head; Miller, at right half-back, is one of the swiftest men in the South, also being a hard and sure tackler; McCabe, at left half-back, is sure tackler; McCabe, at left half-back, is showing up in fine shape, this place being new to him, as end was formerly his position, at which place he was considered one of the best the institute has ever had, for he is not only fast, but also strong and heavy, weighing 170 pounds; Johnson, at left guard, is a tower of strength to any team, a man of fine physique, every pound of which is utilized with nerve and judgment. Kirk, at full-back, has shown great improvement over last year, both in kirking and bucking the line. He weighs 180 great improvement over last year, both in kicking and bucking the line. He weighs 180 pounds and his plunges through the line are terrible to stop; Marshall is now playing left tackle and is a hard, aggressive player, though at present lacks experience at this position, but can always gain his ground when carrying the ball; Wright, at center is a goal strong man and her center, is a good, strong man, and has shown much improvement the past two

MANY APPLICANTS. For the other positions on the team there are many applicants, all of whom are working hard, and it is going to be a are working hard, and it is going to be a very difficult task for Coach Watker and Captain Roller to select who are the best men. Tucker, Wise and Marshall have been playing at ends, being all good men. men. Hucker, wise and all good men, but the preference is a little in favor of the two former. Martin, Milton, Smlley, Johnson, Lee and Pace are the most prominent men at tackles. Rawn and Claggett, both last year's substitutes, have improved their game very much, and would do credit to any place they play. Leftwich, one of this year's finds, is pleasing Coach Walker very much at guard, being very strong and nervy.

Hudgins and Perry are both doing some brilliant work for the second team, and would be fitting substitutes for any place in the back field. Other applicants are Ryland, Collier, Elliot, Mullen, Desteiger, Norton and Whitting.

BLACKSBURG ELEVEN.

A Stronger Team Probably Than Tha of Last Year.

(Special Dispatch to The Times,) BLACKSBURG, VA., October 6.-Foot-ball is the topic of all absorbing interest here now. Owing to the late opening o the Institute, the candidates for the team have only within the last week gotten down to hard, straight football, but the men are working with unbounded enthu siasm now, and are fast getting into 'Varsity shape.

The discouragement which was manifest ed in college circles a few days ago seems to have given away to perfect confidence in the men who are struggling for a regular position on the first eleven and the coaches who guide their efforts. While several of last year's strongest players are not here this year, there is an abundance of new material, and, on the whole, the outlook for the season promises well. Fourteen of last year's 'Varsity and scrub elevens are on the grounds, and there are twenty-two new applicants. Thirty-six candidates were transferred to the training table to-day. Dr. Eugene Davis, Virginia's famous guard of '97 and '98, has charge of the team. Some of the more promising candidates are:

J. B. Huffard, captain and full back, who made an enviable reputation at half back last year. He is fast and nervy, al-ways has his head with him and is a lineplugger to delight a rooter's heart. W. F. Cox, ex-captain of the team of 99, will play his old position at tackle.

'99, will play his old position at tackle. He has had three years' experience on the Varsity eleven, and is able to give a good account of himself in any company.

L. L. Jewel is another of the veterans who will do business at the old stand-end. He is a heavy player, a vicious tackler and one of the fastest men on the field. C. H. Carpenter, last year's full back will undoubtedly play the other end. He has good weight, good judgment, and makes his hundred yards in ten and a fraction. SURE GROUND-GAINER. H. G. McCormick will play right half back. "Mac" played a tackle last year, back. and played it well. He is a sure groundgainer, and a holy terror on defensive

C. J. B. DeCamps, last year's star quarter, will hold his same position. He can size up his opponent on the jump, and is one of the very fastest quarters in the R. W. Carper is holding down his old position at guard. The most promising new men are Steele, a last year's sub, and Stiles, who are playing each other hard for center. Abbott and Proctor are arguing over guard, cilman, Miles, Waish and Mann are try-ing for tackle, and there's more than one good one in the bunch. Osterbine, McCui-lock, Ware, Nepp. Begg, Gill and Goldman are for half backs; Beverly and Ware for quarter; Shaner, Crowgey, Richardson, Spiller and Longley for ends. BLACKSBURG, VA. October, 6.—The football season was inaugurated at Blacksburg to-day by a game between the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and St. Albans, from Radford, Va., in which the latter were defeated 23 to 0. There was quite an enthusiastic crowd of rooters very evenly divided in favors. The day was exceedingly warm, and good, straight football was an impossibility. 'Varsity teamwere given a chance to show their skill during the game, and remarkably and well did the men show it.

The goals were crossed by Carpenter, Hufford and McCormick for Virginia Polytechnic Institute. The best playing was by Carpenter, Miles, Abbott, Hufford and Cox. For St. Albans Baird, Ingles, Monger and Bagly did the best work.

Over the last race run by the Richmond horse Crow, owned by Ira C. Nelson, there was tremendous excitement. Crow finished fourth in the first heat, but won the three succeeding heats and the race in a rush. Crow was quietly backed by the talent to rin, but much Norfolk money was up and lost on Fair Secretary Dillon's Too Soon, who finished a particularly close secon in every heat. Crow won several heats by a nose, and a short nose at that.

THE RANDOLPH'S DEBATE. Republican Party Was the Subject of Discussion Last Night, The Randolph Literary Society had a public meeting and a splendid audience at Lee Camp Hall last night. The subject for discussion was: Resolved, That the Republican party has Ladies, as well as gentlemen, were present to hear the debate. Among those present was City Attorney Henry R. Pollard. The speecnes showed careful prepar-ation and each debater made a good ar-passed the zenith of its glory.

Major A. S. Lanier and Mr. John G. Eggleston took the affirmative. They made Democratic stump speeches that would entertain and instruct audiences made Democratic stump speeches that would entertain and instruct audiences gathered to hear a real political argument. The Republican party "was hauled over the coals" by these gentlemen.

Messrs. John B. Lightfoot, Jr., and Wm. Crump Tucker took the negatative side of the question. They talked well for their side of the proposition. These gentlemen contended that the "power" and "glory" and the policy of the Republican party, if carried out, would result in building up one of the most glorious nations the world has ever known.

There is no organization in the city that is productive of greater good or more advantagous to its members than the Randolph.

In it young men have been trained to think and speak, and many of its members have adorned our legislative halls, some have been elected to Congress, and some have entered upon a ministerial career, all of whom in their several vocations have reflected credit upon themselves and benefited society at large.

The society now has about forty members—all young men, members of the bar, and engaged in various business pursuits. The society has recently undertaken the publication of a magazine, the first issue of which will soon make its appearance. It will contain to some extent the de-upon political, economic and ethical ques-tions of practical moment and interest; and also original articles by member; of the society on subjects of a kindred na-ture to the debates. This society will furnish many orators to the political cam-palgn that is now in progress in the State, and if their speeches on the hustings are characterized by the same eloquence, force characterized by the same eloquence, force and logic which they put into the debate list night, which was informat, being the regular exercises to which the public were admitted, they will make things warm for the opponents of Democracy.

After the speaking a short business meeting was held, at which it was decided to divide the society into two factions and elect a leader for each. The election resulted in the selection of Mr. Irving Campbell and Mr. E. H. Courtney as leaders of the respective factions.
